

...could not be taken too soon, and that had an extra session of Congress been called last Spring, much of the trouble which has since occurred might have been avoided.

James D. Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank, declares that in his opinion the Sherman Silver act will be repealed without question.

"At the banking house of J. & W. Seligman, it was said that the determination of Congress next month was most gratifying, and would certainly result in great good to the business community."

The immediate tendency will be," said Mr. Seligman, "to restore confidence in financial circles, and that in the near future, when the money market is demoralized by the uncertainty which has prevailed for some time past, no one wants to lend. Mr. Cleveland deserves the credit of wise and judicious action."

According to Henry Clews, the banker, the full effect of the calling together of Congress next month in restoring public confidence, will not be observed for several days.

Following exchange was quiet and a shade firmer in tone.

The market for specie for the week was quiet, including $485,508 from Southampton, brought by the steamship Columbus.

Money was nominally 6 per cent. on Saturday. There was little or no demand for the currency.

The bank statement shows a loss of $1,300,000 in surplus reserves, which brings the amount held above the 25 per cent. legal requirement down to $1,200,000. The banks hold $2,500,000 in cash, owing to the shipment of currency to the interior.

Next week the banks ought to do better, as the July interest and dividend disbursements will help them out.

Probably the most important item will be paid out during the current month by the General Government, States, cities, and the railroad and manufacturing corporations.

The following are the comparative figures:

Item	1892	1893
Specie	$4,855,508	$4,855,508
Gold	1,300,000	1,300,000
Silver	3,555,508	3,555,508
Notes	1,200,000	1,200,000
Cash	2,500,000	2,500,000

The sales of stocks were 86,800 shares. Silver was traded in to the extent of $1,300,000. The market for gold was quiet, and the price of gold was 100.00.

The following are the comparative figures:

Item	1892	1893
Specie	$4,855,508	$4,855,508
Gold	1,300,000	1,300,000
Silver	3,555,508	3,555,508
Notes	1,200,000	1,200,000
Cash	2,500,000	2,500,000

MAY NOT BE SOLVED.

The Mystery of Cicero Harrison's Loss at Sea.

His Widowed Daughter Returns to Norfolk To-Day.

There the Search for the $100,000 Valise Will Be Continued.

Whether Cicero Harrison, the wealthy carriage-maker of Jackson, Mich., and a fourth cousin of ex-President Benjamin Harrison, fell or was thrown overboard from the deck of the Guyanotte, of the Old Dominion line, while travelling from Norfolk, Va., to this city, is a question that may never be definitely settled.

Mrs. Oliver, his widowed daughter, who was his companion on the journey, is undecided which theory to advance. All she can say is that his disappearance is a mystery, while the Old Dominion line officials say there is no mystery whatever about it, and that all the circumstances point to his having fallen overboard while ill or asleep.

Mrs. Oliver goes back to Norfolk on the same vessel, which leaves the pier foot of Beach street, North River, this afternoon, with the hope of learning something that will clear up the mystery. She also hopes to find the valise which her father had with him at Norfolk, and which contained securities valued at nearly $100,000. This valise, she believed, he had with him in his state room on the steamer, but it cannot be found now.

Mr. Harrison, who retired from business over twenty years ago, has been travelling a good deal during the past few years with the hope of benefiting his health. Although nearly eighty years old, he was still vigorous and never complained of heart or any other trouble. He always carried considerable money about with him, and principally for that reason objected to any one staying in the same state room with him at night. He also objected to the use of the lavatory.

Accompanied by his daughter, he left Boston for Norfolk five days ago, and on reaching that city he secured a state room, where he left his valise, with instructions to the steward to keep it in his charge. The check which he received in exchange he put in his pocket.

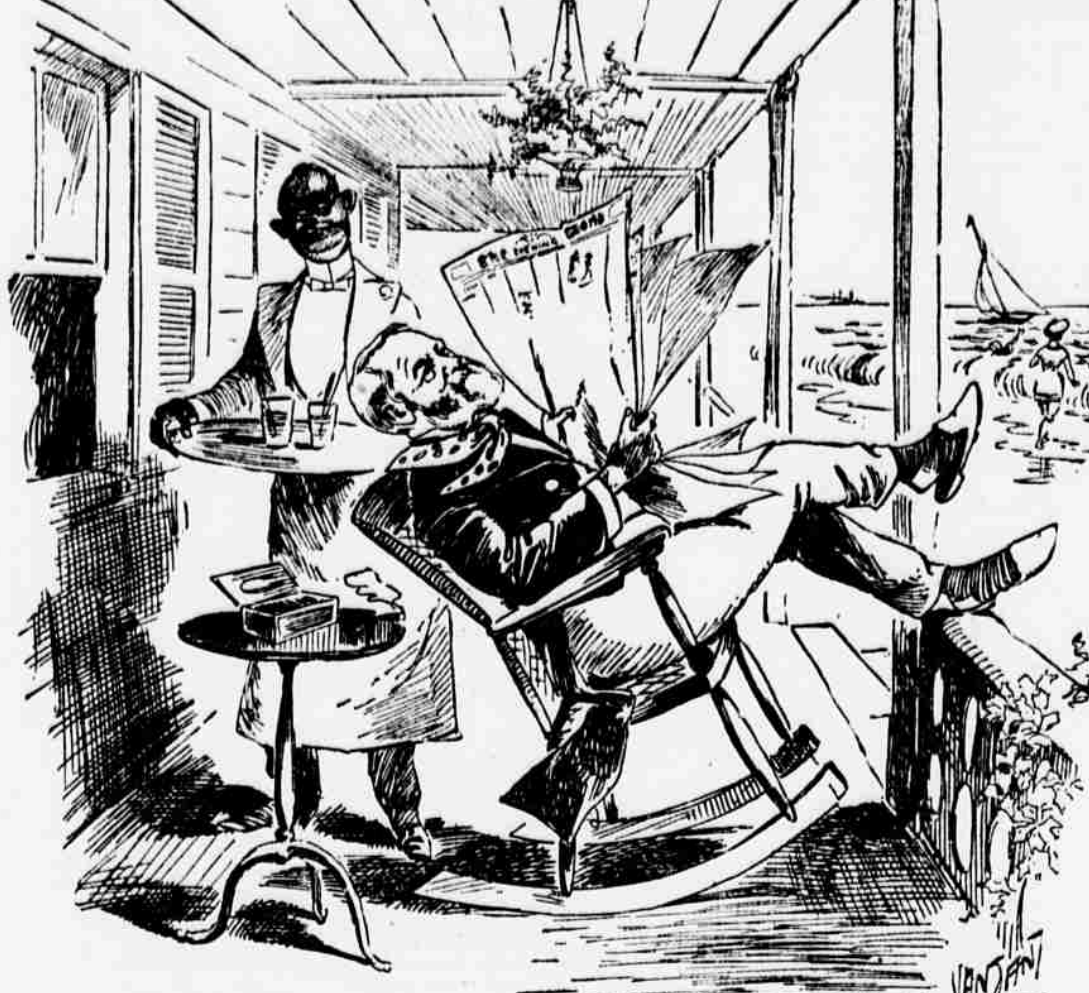

Travelling tickets, but on this occasion her father was feeling so ill that he could not get out of his state room. He remained in a state room on the Guyanotte, he boarded the vessel and went to his state room, where he remained until he died.

"He said he would try and do so," then he gave me the small change he had, and put his pocketbook in my hands. I have not seen it since."

The passenger who occupied the state room with Mr. Harrison was Mr. Levi, who has a notion store in Halifax street, and who is now in the city. He says that there were three other friends of his on board. The quietest remained in his state room, and the other two went to the same room with him, and wanted to know if he could get a berth in some other part of the ship. He said he would try and do so, and put up with it until the morning, and it would be only for a short time any more.

"He said he would try and do so," then he gave me the small change he had, and put his pocketbook in my hands. I have not seen it since."

NOT DISTURBED BY THE PENDING CRISIS.

B. H.--Thank Heaven, I Can Now Read the Newspapers in Comfort.

MRS. SAVIN GETS HER DECREE.

Christian Wolferth Freed from Minerva, the Strong Woman.

Eugene H. Crossman Falls, but Has Permission to Try Again.

Today Granted Bella W. Savin her decree of separation from her husband, Thomas L. Savin, the law clerk, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

The decree of the Court awards Mrs. Savin a week alimony. Their child, Marie, two years of age, is placed in the custody of the mother, and she is to remain until she is fourteen years of age. Both parents are to be paid for the child's support.

Christian Wolferth, who married Minerva, the strong woman, who is well known in the city, was granted a decree of separation from her husband, Eugene H. Crossman, because he abandoned her and treated her cruelly.

They were married in Baltimore April 23, 1889. She was a widow and well educated. Her husband accused her of intimacy with a druggist, a mutual friend of the family, but the Court did not sustain the charges.

IT IS POSTMASTER DAYTON.

He Believed Mr. Van Cott at 3.30 O'clock This Morning.

Many Friends on Hand to Tender Their Congratulations.

Postmaster Dayton was formally installed in his office as the agent of the Post-Office Department and custodian of the Treasury Department in this city at 3.30 o'clock this morning.

Although ex-Postmaster Van Cott practically turned over the office to his successor at midnight, it was not until the first light of dawn this morning that the inventory of the building and its contents was completed. The two committees, representing the outgoing and incoming officials, worked hard all yesterday afternoon and evening, and when they completed their labors the records were signed by both, and the office was formally transferred. Postmaster Dayton then hurried to his home in Harlem.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

Commissioner of Public Works Day and Police Capt. Thompson were among the callers.

Confidential Secretary Swift was kept busy answering inquiries concerning the Postmaster's intentions, and to all he declared that the latter intended first to make a tour of inspection of the city, and then to take up his residence in the city.

As a result of the confinement to so late an hour, Postmaster Dayton did not reach the Post-office until after midnight to-day. Immediately upon his arrival he set to work to "learn the ropes" of the office, but he was interrupted frequently to receive the good-wishes of friends.

His confidential secretary, Frederick J. Swift, was at the Postmaster's desk early this morning, and received a number of callers, who came to extend their congratulations in the absence of Mr. Dayton. A basket of natural roses, the gift of Thornton N. Motley, a personal friend of the new Postmaster, stood on the latter's desk.

FLOWER ON EXTRA SESSION.

The Governor Says President Cleveland's Action Was Timely.

New York's Executive and Staff Off for Gettysburg.

Gov. Flower and his staff, together with Secretary of State Rice, Attorney-General Roosevelt, Comptroller Campbell, Col. Judson, the Governor's private secretary, and Col. Hall, of the Regular Army, left for Gettysburg by special train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at 11 o'clock this morning.

The Governor and his party came down from the State Camp at Peekskill, arriving by special train on the New York Central at 10.05 o'clock. They were driven in carriages to the Desbrosses Hotel, where they remained until 11 o'clock.

The staff, comprising Adjutant-General Porter, Surgeon-General Bryan, Gen. Van Dusen, Chief of Ordnance, Gen. Frederick P. Earle, Chief of Artillery, Judge Advocate-General, Inspector-General, Quartermaster-General, and other officials, were with the Governor.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

The Governor was in his usual affable frame of mind, and speaking of the call for special sessions of Congress, he said yesterday by President Cleveland, he said:

"The action of the President was timely and August is early enough for the session. It is plain that the Sherman act has been repealed. The action of the Indian Government settled that."

There was room for a difference of opinion as to the time for the resumption of specie payments.

WE ARE IN THE JEWELRY BUSINESS AND GOOD PEOPLE TO YOU TO KNOW.

CREDIT EXTENDED.

FLETCHER WATCH & JEWELRY CO.

182 Broadway, New York City.

USED PEQUOT CLUB AS BAIT.

Beckwith Got Money from West Side Merchants.

Took Pay for "Ads" Which Were Not Printed.

L. A. Beckwith was held for trial in the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning, charged with swindling merchants of money in amounts ranging from $2 to $10 for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

Beckwith and his confederates visited many west side merchants, and collected money for advertisements in the book, until finally his enterprise came to a halt.

</